responsibility participation and choice are key policy framings of active citizenship summoning the citizen to take on new roles in welfare state reform this volume traces the emergence of new discourses and the ways in which they take up and rework struggles of social movements for greater independence power and control it explores the changing cultural and political inflections of active citizenship in germany finland norway the netherlands france italy and the uk with ethnographic research complementing policy analysis the editors then look across the volume to assess some of the tensions and contradictions arising in the turn to active citizenship two final chapters address the reworking of citizen professional relationships and the remaking of public private and personal responsibilities with a particular focus on the contribution of feminist research and theory examines the idea of choice arguing that personal choice may be a misconception and is in reality a product of circumstances determined by such factors such as biology culture authority and economics welfare to work programmes aim to assist the long term unemployed in finding work increasing labour market flexibility eliminating dependency and tackling social exclusion they have been implemented in many western countries this book focuses on an important and novel feature of these programmes they replace the rights based entitlements that have characterized the welfare state for decades with conditional rights dependent on the fulfilment of obligations conditions are attached to the benefits received this new type of social contract between the claimant and the state carries with it a new construction of the relationship between rights and responsibilities and a new interpretation of citizenship paz fuchs examines the theoretical underpinnings of welfare to work programmes incorporating a comparative analysis of the uk and usa where the ideal of social citizenship is being curtailed through welfare reforms he argues that when the rhetoric of the social contract is used to imply a continuous contract between citizens and the state a vast array of conditions on welfare can be legitimated including workfare the obligation to accept any job offer and moral and social preconditions that are based on a vague notion of reciprocity paz fuchs argues by contrast that conditional welfare undermines civil rights such as the right to privacy and family life by requiring welfare claimants to change their behaviour he contends that strengthening welfare rights and relaxing preconditions on entitlement would better serve the objectives that welfare to work programmes are supposed to advance what should i do how should i deal with this how should i behave how should i act we ask ourselves daily but this is only the first part of the sentence while the full sentence is what should i do to achieve such and such for example to complete an assigned task to do well before my boss or a client to be pleased with myself to carry out my plans to make money in the stock market to pass an exam to complete an application etc these and similar questions that people ask consciously or not openly or not are decisions what skills must we master especially when there is a need to make not only elementary decisions but also decisions that affect the existence health and even lives of people first laszlo zsolnai writes that we should acquire the skill of gaining knowledge only then will we stand a chance of reacting to things that are improbable today but could become a fact tomorrow also essential is the skill of designing i e preparing actions conceptually in order to make decisions before irreversible changes occur finally it is essential to master the skill of multidimensional judgment within the space defined by effectiveness efficiency and ethics this is zsolnai's attempt to build a model of making ethical decisions both effectively and efficiently therefore the model is much broader than purely an analytical framework would be it must tell us how to act rather than limit us to reflection on actions already performed it must combine decision and praxiological analysis of human conduct the proposed model enlarges the scope of the debate and suggests new avenues of both rational and responsible decision making this is an original statement of the crossover of policy and morality this introduction just aims to be a fast foreword to the special topic now turned into an e book the editorial decision making experiments under a philosophical analysis human choice as a challenge for neuroscience alongside with my opinion article neurophilosophical considerations on decision making pushing up the frontiers without disregarding their foundations play the real role of considering in more details the articles and the whole purpose of this e book what i must highlight in this foreword is that our intention with such a project was to deepen into the very foundations of our current paradigms in decision neuroscience and to philosophically moot its foundations and repercussions normal science a term coined by philosopher thomas kuhn works under a research consensus among a scientific community a shared paradigm consolidated methods widespread convictions pragmatically winning formulas must be kept although not at any cost what differentiates a gifted and revolutionary scientist from a more bureaucratic colleague is the capacity and willingness of constantly reevaluating depurating and refining his/her own paradigm that is best strategy to avoid that a paradigm itself would gradually come under challenge in my view some achievements in this sense were brought about in our project the e book will be inspiring and informative for both neuroscientists that are concerned with the very foundations of their works and for philosophers that are not blind to empirical evidence kant once said thoughts without content are empty intuitions without concepts are blind paraphrasing kant we could say philosophy without science is empty science without philosophy is blind freedom is one of the most powerful and alluring concepts in human history we dream of it fight for it and even define our lives by it yet the deeper we delve into the essence of freedom the more we encounter its paradox with the power to choose comes the weight of responsibility to be free is not merely to act without restraint but to recognize and embrace the consequences of our actions this paradox lies at the heart of the human experience on one hand we yearn for personal liberty the ability to express ourselves make our own decisions and forge our unique paths on the other hand we live in a world where our choices ripple outward impacting family community society and even the planet how do we reconcile our individual freedoms with the obligations we owe to others this tension is not a modern dilemma it is a timeless spiritual question from ancient scriptures to contemporary philosophy humanity has sought to navigate the delicate balance between autonomy and accountability it is a question that transcends cultures and religions pointing to a universal truth freedom and responsibility are two sides of the same coin in this book we will explore this paradox through a spiritual lens we will journey into the realms of personal choice moral obligation and the interconnectedness of all life along the way we will draw upon wisdom from diverse traditions philosophical religious and mystical to uncover how we can embrace both our liberty and our duty this is not a book about answers but about reflections it is an invitation to contemplate your own relationship with freedom and responsibility how do you define freedom in your life what are the responsibilities that come with it and how can embracing this paradox lead to a life of greater meaning purpose and harmony as you read consider this truth the paradox of freedom is not a problem to solve but a mystery to live it is in the dance between choice and accountability that we discover what it means to be truly free
